Greeting

It is my sincere hope this finds you and loved ones in the very best of health and high spirits. As for myself, all here is as can be expected under the prevailing circumstances, dealing with the madness that is prison.

Thank you for the B-day salutations, it is much appreciated. Unfortunately, I spent the entire day in bed nursing a terrible cold. So, I've been drinking tea, honey and lemon for the last couple of day... Plus, lots of water at night forcing me to wake up several times during the night - if you know what I mean!?

At any rate, it was hoped I see the parole board next month, but there was a snafu with the documents for review by the parole commissioners. Now, I have to wait another month, it has been rescheduled for December. I'm pissed! But, if waiting a month to get a impartial hearing, then, something that could result in a two year hit, I'll wait another month.

In the meantime, Jericho continues to push the In the Spirit of Nelson Mandela International Jurist campaign. We are reaching out to human rights organizations around the world and petitioning them to support the campaign. Please keep an eye on Jericho's website to learn more. If you're not getting Jericho's newsletter, contact Jericho and let them know you want to be put on the email mailing list. We are asking friends and supporters when they receive the newsletter to re-post on their list serve to further extend it's outreach.

Okay, I will close this here extending my very best regards to the righteous of heart with you. Please be careful in your travels and stay safe.

Yours in struggle -
